Metropolitan Archbishop + Haralambos , Grand Prelate, Conducts a Formal Investiture in Rome, Italy

With Saint Paul Cathedral in Rome serving as the magnificent background, Metropolitan Archbishop + Haralambos, Grand Prelate – on October 18, 2008 – during a moving Christian religious investiture service invested 27 knights into the Order of the Holy Sepulchre (O.S.S.) of Jerusalem .

The Order dates back to 324 A.D., when it was established by Saints Constantine and Helen. Archbishop Haralambos is a Knight Grand Cross and Grand Prior of the Grand Priory of Saint Michael International, which sponsors a college in West Palm Beach, Florida.

The O.S.S. was established to protect the Christian sites in Jerusalem – especially the Holy Sepulchre of Jesus Christ. During the investiture, Archbishop Haralambos had each knight swear to Jesus Christ on a huge, ancient Bible.

The Knights are to protect the Holy Sites – from both the enemies outside and inside the One, Holy, Universal, Apostolic Church. The mission of the O.S.S. is ecumenism – to reunite those who divided during the Great Schism of 1054.

Following the investiture service at Saint Paul Cathedral, a reception took place in the medieval 700-year-old castle – Castello di Lunghezza, for the newly-inducted Knights and nearly 200 other friends and family members from all over the world. The reception at Castello di Lunghezza included a sumptuous seven-course meal.

Those served included the Majesterium of the O.S.S. of Jerusalem– Vicar Grand Master of Jerusalem Count Sandro Calleja; David Formosa, Grand Chancellor; Chevalier Mauro Majori, Grand Chancellor of Italy; Enzo, Grand Prior of Italy; and Metropolitan Archbishop Haralambos, Knight Grand Cross and Grand Prior of the Grand Priory of Saint Michael International and Dame Lois Bouchlas.
